

Download Lithophragma Parviflorum

Lithophragma parviflorum is a species of flowering plant in the saxifrage family known by the common name smallflower woodland star. It is native to much of western North America from British Columbia to California to South Dakota and Nebraska, where it grows in several types of open habitat. For vascular plants occurring in wildlands or otherwise outside of cultivation in California, the Jepson eFlora contains taxonomic treatments, distribution maps, illustrations, photographs, and identification keys. The Plants Database includes the following 2 subspecies of Lithophragma parviflorum. Click below on a thumbnail map or name for subspecies profiles. About Prairie Star (Lithophragma parviflorum) Lithophragma parviflorum is a species of flowering plant in the saxifrage family known by the common name smallflower woodland star.